

not made

BACK INTO THE AGES

By William L. Finley and Arthur N. Pack
of Nature Magazine

American Antelope - survivors of a race which once peopled the desert wilderness.

In the canyon bottom live the little gambel quail with their curious top-knots.

Among the rocks live small decendants of the prehistoric <sup>3</sup>lizards.

Spring is the time of their courting dance.

Up the Kaibab trail.

not made

PUEBLO AND NAVAJO

By William L. Finley and Arthur N. Pack
of Nature Magazine

Taos Pueblo, New Mexico

Baking bread

Santa Clara Pueblo

Making Indian Pottery

The old way of grinding corn

And this is the bread the Pueblo Indians eat

Puye Cliff ruins, the deserted home of an ancient race

Santa Clara Indian dances

The Painted Desert - home of the Navajo

Navajo Indians do not live in towns or communities but in isolated Hogans.