

April 22 - 1937

THE BUILDER

OREGON CITY KIWANIS CLUB
OREGON CITY, OREGON

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ROOMS
THURSDAY NOON

April 22, 1937.

PICTORIAL LECTURE FOR THURSDAY

Our program for this week comes through the medium of the motion picture camera, however the exact topic was not known to the Program Committee. Ken Proctor, Program Chairman guarantees the entertainment to be well worth while.

We have a real opportunity to make a good attendance record in April, and with the cooperation of every member we will soon be back up near the top of the list, where we belong.

---- ' ' ----

The Sage of Petes Mountain says: "Men and bicycles fall when they cease moving."

Rumor has it that the goat population of this vicinity resent Doc Chapman's horse being called an "old goat."

JOE LONGFELLOW HONORED

At the annual meeting of the Inland Empire Education Association in Spokane recently, our own J. T. (Joe) Longfellow was elected President of that organization for the ensuing year, thereby upholding our belief that Joe is one of the outstanding educators of the country. The Club has ample reason to be proud of a member whose ability has been so recognized.

---- ' ' ----

John Borden won the attendance prize last week. Don't forget to show up Thursday, John, or you'll lose out like Bud Kendall did last week.

At last we have a plumber in the Club. Eldon Alldredge is now associated with the Williams Plumbing Company.

Don't forget the Board of Directors meeting on Wednesday. All members are welcome to attend.

NATURALIST DELIVERS POTENT SPEECH

FINLEY DEFENDS OREGON FISH LIFE

Last week, William L. Finley, nationally famous naturalist, author, and lecturer, and an honorary member of this Club, gave Kiwanians and sportsmen of Oregon City something to think about when he packed a thirty minute speech with interesting facts and figures that exposed both existing and potential dangers to Oregon's valuable salmon runs. The pollution of our rivers, the building of dams, and the extinction of natural food resources for the salmon were cited as the greatest dangers to a continuation of our world famous salmon industry. Finley's plea was that one industry should not destroy another, unless there was resulting benefit to the people as a whole. A good many Oregon City sportsmen attended the meeting to hear the noted speaker.

---- ' ' ----

POETRY DEPARTMENT

Three young fellers went fishing
And quite a mess they brought back
But one feller got all the glory
And the others are holding the sack.

---- ' ' ----

CONVENTION TO BE IN PORTLAND

Due to an unforeseen business boom that made housing facilities for Convention Delegates unavailable, the Klamath Falls Club has had to give up its elaborate plans for holding this year's District Convention in that city. With the dates for the Convention unchanged, the Portland Clubs have taken over the job of making this year's conclave the biggest yet, thereby giving Oregon City a wonderful opportunity to make a big showing. What are we going to do about it?