Couch School Space Sought for Museum

8884
A play room at Couch school will be rented to the Oregon Audubon society to house a museum, if the school board tonight approves recommendation of its committee on education.

The committee reported that William L. Finley, vice president of the National Wildlife federation, requested use of two or three classrooms for the Audubon society. The room would be used to house the Braly Museum of National History, which the society plans to buy and bring to Portland from Depoe Bay.
